

Natalya Crowe

Director, Revenue Cycle

Natalya Crowe has nine years of experience in various logistics and supply chain roles and over nine years of revenue cycle experience. In her healthcare related roles, she has handled large scale hospital and physician system integrations, divestitures, and acquisitions, managed the assigned book of business for both client retention and future growth opportunities. She acted as a primary contact and relationship leader with Client's Executive Teams ensuring superior execution on all aspects of revenue cycle improvement initiatives.

In her current role at TPC as the Director of Revenue Cycle, Natalya leads strategic revenue cycle initiatives that are targeted to improve Member performance to result in savings and overall patient satisfaction in the communities where Members serve.

Natalya has a master's degree from Kurgan State University in Logistics and Supply Chain (graduated with honors). She has completed various Project Management courses, including systems and processes training.